

They're American Girls

Making a Difference

Kids and adults alike enjoyed the Robert Crown Center for Health Education's American Girl fashion show Sunday at the Doubletree Hotel in Oak Brook. It was difficult to decide who had more fun — the girls in the audience watching or the girls on the runway. Maddie Faison gets a touch up from Jacqui Damasco. Mallory Turner proved you can too eat a cookie, hold your doll and enjoy the show. Waiting to appear on the runway, Alexandra Skoulikaris and Lainey Clark give their dolls a quick check. During the show Margaret Kassay, Sophia Cullotta, Jamie Killian and Rachel Pearson mimic one of the models to perform a proper curtsy. (Jim Slonoff photos)

— Making a Difference is a yearlong partnership between The Hinsdalean and the Robert Crown Center for Health Education, which works to teach and motivate youth to lead healthy, happy and safe lives.

